June 10, 2022

Dear Colleagues:

Congratulations!

After the unprecedented challenges of the past two years, it is particularly meaningful for me to have the opportunity to acknowledge the important and irreplaceable contributions our staff make — 365 days a year — to Cal State Long Beach.

Our 211 honorees represent almost every college, division, and auxiliary across campus, with service ranging from 10 to 40 years. Our honorees have given 3,570 years of service to The Beach. You have invested your time and your talents in The Beach, and we strive to honor that service by striving to build a campus environment that gives you the ability to thrive, both personally and professionally, and participate fully in the life of this great university.

Thank you for your persistence, resolve, flexibility, and unwavering dedication to The Beach and to each other under the most trying of circumstances. I could not be more proud to be part of such a wonderful community.

Go Beach!

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, reading "Jane Close Conoley". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first letters of each name being capitalized and prominent.

Henry Wu

COLLEGE OF NATURAL SCIENCES AND MATHEMATICS

DIVISION OF ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Thirty-Five Years of Service – 1986

Henry came to CSULB as a student studying Accounting in 1983. He first worked as a Student Assistant in the Controller's Office. He then applied for a staff position as an Accounting Technician when his supervisor encouraged him to apply.

When Henry began working at CSULB, the campus had a much different appearance than it does today. Henry shared, "There were no Parking Structures, no Pyramid, no escalator next to the Student Union and no Coffee Bean. There was a huge, privately owned parking lot across 7th Street."

Throughout his career, Henry has worked through many roles to advance to the current position he holds today. In 1986, he started as an Accounting Technician II in the Controller's Office. He then moved up to an Accounting Technician III position. Later, he assumed the role of a System Analyst in Financial Management and transitioned to the Budget Office as an Assistant Budget Analyst. In 1992, he was promoted to the Administrative Services Manager (ASM) role for the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics. In 2003, he received additional responsibilities as the ASM of the Office of Research and Economic Development.

Henry has enjoyed working for CSULB for so many years because each day has brought on a new challenge. He shared, "If you're bored, just wait for tomorrow."

During his breaks, one of Henry's favorite places to visit on campus is the Coffee Bean and Tea Leaf. When planning for retirement, Henry looks forward to being able to travel more without bringing his laptop with him.

Denise De Grazia

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

DIVISION OF ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Forty of Service – 1981

Denise came to CSULB with a bachelor's degree in medical microbiology. She was hired as a 10-month Instructional Support Technician to prepare the supplies and equipment needed in five different classes of the Biological Sciences department. She is responsible for ensuring that the students and professors have the necessary materials to conduct procedures for the research and experiments performed in class daily. The tasks she performs makes the classroom experience better because the students can count on having adequate and clean supplies and equipment that is in good working condition. She also ensures that the classroom is safe by eliminating toxic materials.

The way in which Denise performs her duties has changed with the changes to regulations over the years. She created a weekly schedule for each semester that lists the lab experiments performed in each class. It also lists when animals and blood are needed so they are received on time. This high-priority system helps keep the classrooms and office running safely and smoothly even when she is gone for two months out of the year. It is not always easy to keep up, but Denise works tirelessly and manages it very well. She said, "Before I retire, I want to make sure the next person who steps into my role walks into a safe, well-organized office."

There is always something new to learn and new procedures to follow, but she is happy to accommodate to meet the students' needs. Graduate assistants help her keep the office running in an orderly fashion. She said, "My colleagues learn from each other and take a collegial team approach to our work." Even in such a professional setting, Denise has had her funny moments. She recalls a time when several frogs got loose. Though she couldn't see where all of them were, she could hear croaking under the lab benches the building.

When Denise first started working at CSULB, her mother, Rachel Jensen (retired), worked in the Department of Real Estate and Law for the College of Business Administration. Denise, now following in her mother's footsteps, had no idea that she would remain in her position for so long. However, she has always known that she has a good job with good benefits. She feels fortunate to know that those benefits will continue after she retires. She shared, "I am not ready to retire. I'd like to work as long as I can."

Denise has taken advantage of the fee waiver program to earn a master's degree in fine arts. She also exercises several days a week at the Student Recreation and Wellness Center and enjoys visiting the campus coffee shops. Her hobbies and interests include painting, reading, politics, exercising, cooking, and traveling.

Denise's job has greatly enhanced her life in many ways. The interaction with students keeps her young and vibrant. She keeps an open mind to diverse cultures and people from around the world. She appreciates working with highly educated people and with students who are eager to learn.

Denise shared, "I am very thankful for this job. This is a great place and resource to work." She wishes to thank all the folks in the department who have been supportive and have made her experience a good one.

Gregory Mars

KINESIOLOGY

DIVISION OF ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Forty Years of Service – 1981

Greg was a civilian employee at the former Long Beach Naval Base when he saw the Athletic Equipment Attendant position announced on the naval base job board. He decided to apply and was hired in January of 1981.

He began working in the men's locker room to support the students of the major and minor sports teams including basketball, football, baseball, soccer, tennis, and wrestling. Working in this capacity has helped Greg to develop careful attention to details, accuracy, and time management skills. He has also completed professional development courses once offered through Staff Human Resources: "Dealing with Difficult People," "How to Create a Job Description," and the certificate program titled "Road to Success." Additionally, his first supervisor, Bob Patterson (retired), was an inspiration and encouraged him to excel. His work schedule and access to the campus amenities allowed him to train and become more qualified to fulfill his dream of becoming a Los Angeles County Reserve Sheriff Deputy.

Greg's two favorite locations on campus include the courtyard between the Physical Education locker buildings where he likes to "chill out and take a break," and at the gym where he plays basketball daily during his lunch period. He said, "Physical fitness around here is incredible. Playing with the students keeps me in good, athletic shape." Interactions with the students help him stay young and have taught him great lessons in life. He has become a better communicator while being somewhat of a mentor to the students. Greg shared some advice he learned throughout his career: "If you're hired to do a job, show your skills and be your best at what you do. Mind your own business and stay in your lane."

Greg's parents modeled commitment and dedication in long-term service. His father worked for over 30 years in Career Military Personnel and his mother worked for 40 years at McDonnell Douglas/Boeing Aircraft. He added, "I've had a very good experience here, and I've enjoyed watching the campus beautifully evolve."

He expressed, "I thank God for keeping me here for this long. I am also thankful to everyone who has influenced my life since I've been here."

Greg loves jazz music and spends his free time building his music collection. When he retires, he hopes to coach youth football or basketball.

Martin Duran

49ER SHOPS, INC.

Thirty-Five Years of Service – 1986

Martin's career with the 49er Shops began when he was referred by a close friend to a job opening at the Hillside Dining Hall in 1986. He secured the position and has remained at the Hillside Dining Hall ever since. One of the most significant memories he has from that time is that he bought his first car in the same year that he started working on campus.

One of the greatest changes Martin has experienced at CSULB is the renovation of the Hillside Dining Hall. During the renovation, Hillside's dining facility was a temporary portable building on the outskirts of Hillside near one of the campus parking lots. The renovation was completed in 2015 with a modernized Dining Hall that provided a larger variety of food options.

In his current position, Martin continues to be inspired by his leaders. "My management team inspires me to be better and excel in my job." He has remained a dedicated employee to CSULB due to the friends and colleagues he has made throughout the years. Since the CSULB community is an integral part of his experience, one of his favorite things to do on campus is to "visit former coworkers at their new locations and catch up."

Martin is appreciative of the relationships he built throughout his career at CSULB. When asked about retirement, he said, "I will miss the friends and coworkers I made who are no longer with us." He looks forward to "taking a lengthy trip down to the beautiful beaches of Cancun" once he retires.

Martin's advice for his campus colleagues is "I would like them to learn good work ethics such as honesty, respect, and to be responsible in their employment."

Manuel Gil

49ER SHOPS, INC.

Thirty-Five Years of Service – 1986

Manuel gained knowledge in the hospitality industry when he received a Certificate in Hotel Restaurant Management from Long Beach City College. As a Long Beach resident, Manuel often drove past the CSULB campus and was curious about the community. One of his close friends, who was a student employee, recommended him for a Dishwasher position in the Parkside Dining Hall and he was hired on the spot.

When reminiscing about the transitions that have ensued on campus over the years, Manuel recalled, "I have seen many changes throughout the years [including] new buildings, promotions, new bosses, and building renovations...Through all the changes I have experienced while working on campus, I have learned to be adaptable in any circumstance."

As the Manager of the Hillside Dining Hall, Manuel maintains a positive and productive environment by working closely with all his employees. Throughout his career, he has learned a great deal about management and the Hospitality industry. He is especially proud of contributing to the Dining Hall renovations and seeing all the changes that have occurred throughout the campus. He has enjoyed working at the 49er Shops for so many years because of "the students, my peers, the employee benefits, the city of Long Beach, and this beautiful campus."

Many people continue to inspire Manuel including students and fellow colleagues. "The students keep me [motivated]. Every semester is a new challenge, getting ready for a new school year, new faces...Every staff member plays a huge role and I learn from some of them to be a better person, a better Manager, and sometimes a mentor for others."

Manuel has had a profound impact on CSULB students through his work with student employees at the Dining Hall. He has taught the students "proper work ethic which they can utilize in future employment. Sometimes they come back to thank me for the opportunity during their tenure here on campus." Not only does he want the best for students in their careers, but he also strives to serve them well as his customers. "The students are the most important customers that I have. They keep me going all these years. I pay attention to what they have to say [and am] open to new ideas of what they would like to see at the dining facility."

When planning for retirement, Manuel is looking forward to visiting his relatives in Venezuela. He also hopes to spend more time enjoying his hobbies which include bowling, riding his bike, and attending sporting events such as Angels and Lakers games. Although he will enjoy his free time, he shared, "[I will] definitely [miss] my peers at work after all these years...We are part of a family."

Manuel offered some words of gratitude after his many years of service at the 49er Shops. He would like to "thank God, and...thank all my staff who have been helping me to get the job done well during all these years. Thanks to the 49er Shops and all colleagues."

Gilberto Lomeli

49ER SHOPS, INC.

Thirty-Five Years of Service – 1986

Gilberto's career at CSULB first began when his cousin, who worked at the Parkside Dining Hall, encouraged Gilberto to apply for a position at the 49er Shops. He was excited to apply for a role in the Dining Hall because he has a passion for cooking and enjoys working in the kitchen.

When Gilberto first started his employment, the residence and dining halls were much different than they are today. He shared, "There were definitely less students and Parkside had not gone through the renovations yet." While the dining halls and campus have gone through many changes throughout the years, Gilberto has also experienced many changes in his employment. He first worked in the dish room and worked his way up to a Runner, Kitchen Prep, and finally, a Cook which is the position he holds today.

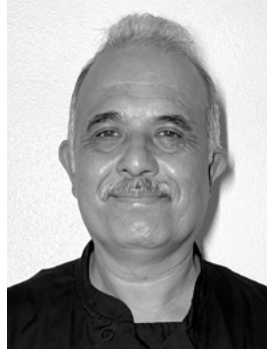

Through his interaction with student employees, Gilberto has worked hard to have a positive influence on them. "I'm proud of my ability to train students and know that I am able to make an impact on them...I try to lead by example with a good work ethic and I like to think that I have been able to influence my coworkers and the student workers by showing them what it means to be a good worker in this particular environment at the Dining Hall." Treating the students as his customers is also an integral part of his role that he enjoys. "By making good food every day, I feel like the students can always expect the food they eat will taste good and be satisfying."

Various colleagues have inspired Gilberto throughout the years. "There was a person who worked for the 49er Shops a long time ago, now passed, named Sally Contreras who kept me motivated and always told me things like 'never give up' and to just keep going." He shared that a fellow colleague, Frances Porras, helped him to improve in his role. "She always knew how to keep me calm during stressful situations and was also someone I could rely on."

Working at the 49er Shops has greatly impacted Gilberto in his personal and professional life. "Through working at Parkside, I have been able to achieve my goals, including becoming a cook and buying and paying off the house I bought for my family...Being able to work with so many different people and being able to make good relationships with people from management has been able to give me different perspectives and the ability to see through others' eyes."

When asked about retirement, Gilberto expressed that he is looking forward to fixing up cars, gardening, and possibly farming with animals. He also hopes to travel to Brazil and Mexico.

Gilberto would like to thank everyone at 49er Shops for "all the memories and years I've been able to work."

CSULB RESEARCH FOUNDATION

Thirty-Five Years of Service – 1986

Brian Nowlin came to Cal State Long Beach with years of experience in the Human Resources (HR) field. His interest in advancing within the field led him to apply for a Personnel Officer role in the CSULB Research Foundation.

Brian has seen many changes in the Foundation throughout his career at CSULB. When he first started, the Foundation had a smaller staff and was located in the East Library. As the organization grew, the staff was divided between the East Library and a temporary trailer, and later a dormitory converted to offices. The completion of the Foundation building in 1994 allowed all of the employees to convene in the new building.

Brian has also experienced many changes within his role. He first started as a Personnel Officer and was the only employee handling Personnel matters for the Foundation. Over the years, he was able to hire additional staff and take on the responsibilities for Payroll and Property Administration. His responsibilities broadened further when he became the Associate Executive Director. In 2010, he assumed the Chief Operating Officer role.

Brian's role has been greatly impacted by students since the Foundation employs approximately 700 students in an average year. Many of these students work directly with faculty members on research projects in their field of study. Brian shared, "Students have always been an integral part of what we do in the Research Foundation. We have been fortunate to have outstanding students work in our office during my time here...After they graduate, their work experience with us is an incredible asset as they enter the working world."

While CSULB students have been a focal point of Brian's experience, the faculty have also influenced him greatly. He shared, "Our faculty are incredible. I have had the privilege of working with so many over the years, and I am always learning from them. Many of these individuals pursue research endeavors that allow CSULB students the opportunity to get hands on experience in their field of study. This not only adds value to their university experience, but it also adds value to the degree they receive."

One of Brian's favorite things to do on campus is to walk the grounds. "We are very fortunate to work in an incredibly beautiful environment. The landscaping and the architecture are eye-pleasing, and the students make everything feel so alive. I usually walk to clear my mind from whatever it is I have been working on, but I end up doing some of my best planning at the same time."

When looking towards retirement, Brian expressed that he "enjoys traveling, seeing new places, having new experiences, and meeting new people. Although I have been to several major cities around the world, I realize there are many places in the U.S. I haven't been, so I will probably start by seeing more of our country. After that, my passport is current, so who knows?"

Sally E. Schliesmayer

CSULB RESEARCH FOUNDATION

Thirty-Five Years of Service – 1986

Sally first began her journey at CSULB as a student, earning a Bachelor of Arts in History in 1987. She was also a Student Assistant with the CSULB Research Foundation for two years. Sally applied for a staff position on campus because she viewed CSULB as a place where she could make a long-term career and loved that the institution existed to better society.

Sally's first position was a Data Entry Team Coordinator in the Graduate Records department which was located in a temporary trailer in the Foundation parking lot. Over time, Sally has worked her way through various roles and currently serves as the Director of University Events and Commencement in which she coordinates major campus events. Some of her proudest accomplishments throughout her career include improving the Alumni Awards Banquet which matured and bloomed under her coordination and planning numerous Homecoming celebrations with over 1000 guests celebrating Beach Pride. Other career highlights include coordinating the groundbreaking and ribbon cutting of the Anna W. Ngai Alumni Center and being entrusted by three CSULB Presidents with planning events in their home.

While Sally's work in events for the past twenty years was mainly focused on alumni, donors, and parents, she always "tried to bring students into as many events as possible so that guests could experience how amazing Beach students are." Sally has also enjoyed interacting with students through their Student Assistant roles. She shared, "I literally could not have done my job the past two decades without Student Assistants. In my work with the CSULB Alumni Association, we always had multiple students on staff. I took my role as a mentor and supervisor seriously and tried to prepare the students for post-commencement life."

CSULB's culture and community have motivated Sally to remain working on campus for so long. "The Beach is a wonderful place to work. I have met so many caring people, people who have helped me along the way. The students I work with encourage me and I am happy to work with the next generation." Sally continues to be inspired in her work through a quote by CSULB alumnus and Rose Parade float designer, Raul Rodriguez, "He said that his work as a float designer provided moments of beauty. I like to think that my work with events provides moments of beauty for the guests that will live on with them."

Sally would like to thank her wife, Janet Romain, "[She] has had to live with my crazy event planning schedule for over two decades...She has kept me motivated and sane. She provides great advice and will often volunteer at events."

When asked what words of wisdom she had to offer current employees, Sally advised, "Take advantage of everything the campus has to offer – theatre events, sporting events, workshops, fee waiver, Staff Council, and other service opportunities. Meet as many people as you can. If you have children, bring them to campus so it becomes their home."
